AUSTRALIAN BUSINESS AWARDS HERALDS MEDICAL RECRUITMENT AGENCY AS RECOMMENDED EMPLOYER

SYDNEY, Australia (15 September 2008) – Wavelength International, a leading Australian medical recruitment and migration company today announced that they have been given the prestigious “Recommended Employer” Australian Business Award.

The Australian Business Awards received 94 applications for this honour in 2008 but awarded only eight. Organisations recognised with the “Recommended Employer” achievement must exhibit a stimulating and supportive workplace. Recipients of this award are required to demonstrate how its people development strategies have created a committed, motivated and effective workforce.

“Our employees are the heart of what we do,” said John Bethell, Director, Wavelength International.

“We are thrilled to be recognised for providing competitive salaries and flexible, family friendly working options, comprehensive development opportunities and generous incentive programs.”

“We have always looked at our internal staff survey results and exceptionally low turnover rate as a barometer of how we rank as employers,” added Claire Ponsford, Director, Wavelength International.”

“Being named a Recommended Employer from the Australian Business Awards reinforces the professional and comfortable environment we have worked hard to achieve.”

“Where appropriate, we approach our employees’ needs on an individual basis to ensure we are providing each with the best work environment possible.”

The Australian Business Awards recognise organisations that demonstrate the core values of business excellence, product excellence, sustainability and commercial success in their respective industries. The 2008 awards were presented to fifty-four organisations selected from a field of 1073 entrants.
